

Increasing Productivity Within The Document Process

Defining StreamStudio Administrator

StreamServe's StreamStudio™ Administrator is designed for end users – such as IT staff — who want to simply and easily customize roles and permissions to protect critical data residing in key documents from accidental or intentional misuse.

What StreamStudio Administrator does

With StreamStudio Administrator, IT departments can:

- Increase staff productivity by saving time and decreasing the costs for the set up and administration of StreamStudio users
- Improve efficiency as more granular control limits data overload and creates precision within roles and responsibilities
- Strengthen customer loyalty by respecting preferences of information delivery

IT Staff Scenario

Situation

Employees are often overtaxed by all the features and functions of the tools they use in their daily jobs, and they simply want to be presented with an intuitive “user-friendly” environment which permits them to do their jobs as efficiently, effectively, and quickly as possible.

Problem

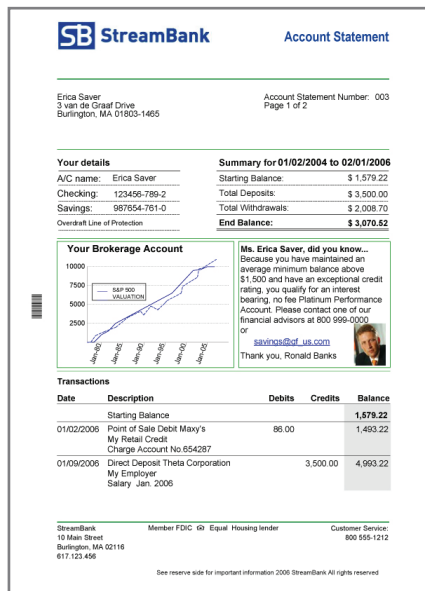

Too many cooks in the kitchen: There can be many people who are involved in creation, production, and distribution of enterprise documents that are used for both internal and external purposes. Oftentimes, costly mistakes occur when there is open access to all users in the end-to-end document lifecycle. This can create cost overruns, the release of inappropriate content, and can result in company liability leading to stiff fines and penalties.

Goal

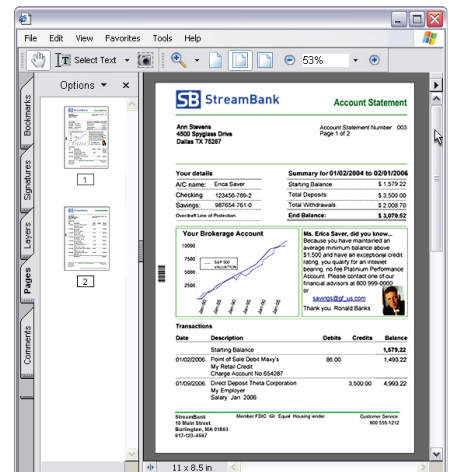

Streamline user tasks, roles, and responsibilities by establishing proper pre-defined rules for both internal and external users.

Solution

Fast and easy user set up with full functionality for establishing user permissions for each role. A flexible editing tool that adapts to changing roles and broader user access.

Customer can choose to receive their statement in the mail

... or have that same statement sent electronically.

Result

Increased productivity for system administrators, and increased efficiency for IT and business users due to the creation of pre-defined roles and tasks.
